Sketch of Constantinople. A letter in the Newark Advertiser, dated Constancople. January, 10, gives the following interesting ketch of that city

Nothing can more surprise us here than the show commerce, the quantity of shipping, and the activiv of life in the harbor. Some 30,000 caiques-richly ined boats with such high sharp prows that only half the vessel appear to touch the water—are constantly hooting over the waters between the three cities, to ay nothing of the great awkward ferry boats; and hips, steamers and other salt water craft are everyhere seen displaying French. English, Dutch, Greek. and Sardinian flags, but with never a sight of the ever lessed "Stars and Stripes." It is an incomparable arbor: large enough for all the shipping of the world; and must become its most inviting emporium trade; which can in fact never decline, since it is be common centre of the internal communication of

His departure from the Seraglio palace becopying the very point of the peninsula on which stands the city, washed on all sides.) was announced wan attillery salute, which brought out half the population. Three gilded caiques, each rowed by 20 20 showly dressed earsmen, comprised the royal uite. The Sultan occupied the middle one, sitting quat on a great green cloth under a green canopy, with four officers facing him. One reaching his desfination he was received by a regiment of troops, with music, and after remaining in the Mosque hall in hour, came out and mounted a caparisoned horse, in the midst of pressing crowds of officers, pachas, counchs, loafers, &c. He was enveloped in a voluminous French broad cloth cloak, and his pale, hol low, Frenchy-face, nearly covered by a flowing black beard, was crowned with a red cap, from which dangled a rich purple tassel. Poor young man! we pited him, for young as he is (only 25) he is evidently

The troops wear a plain European uniform, save the cap, and made a tolerable appearance. I observe dso that the French frock coat is generally worn by the leading men. One sees, indeed, in the streets of Pera and Stamboul the costumes of all quarters of the globe; multitudes of Europeans, Asiatics, Negroes and Moors-a strange mixture of the stiff black Parisian chapeau with the jaunty eastern Turkish ez - the unveiled open-faced beauties of France and ly, intermixed with the muffled heads and flowing bes of the daughters of the prophet, whose muslin un-cloths are usually as dirty as the yellow faces ey half conceal. Troops of children, are encounred at every turn, and are treated with marked indness; and so for that matter are the dogs, whose ame is legion.

Then there is something picturesque in the wild liness of the steep, narrow streets, with their grosque faces, and jutting balconies, as unlike anying else in the world as the most ardent lover of of seen it. A bound, and the Februry and March Nos. Just received and for sale at S. W WHITAKER'S. VISIT HARRISON'S VS. WHITEHURST'S WILMINGTON GALLERY.

THAT treasures of art does this little room contain !-Whichever way you turn, some immortal creation greets your eye. Here you can linger profitably for hours, contemplating the noblest of God's creation-man; here withered arm of memory seems again restored and strength. gloomy prison house of forgetfulness. Who would die with out leaving so desirable a token of remembrance behind? Here beauty, with its diversity of expression and features, glows forth from the plate with rapturous divinity, and fascinates the eye, until the heart worships them, not like the inimitable virginly Angels, the sainted Madonna, or the blue-bearded Magdalene, but as the unapproachable Daguerreotypes of relatives and friends, made by Harrison. Visit his Gallery whether you wish and of his unequalled pictures or not. Mr. H. is acknowledged to be the best Daguerreotypist in the State. Nov. 29th, 1853 OUR MOTTO IS "TO PLEASE,"
